- D) - There are some environments in Russia that are considered fragile. For example, in the northern part of the country there is the city Norilsk, where factories still throw harmful chemicals directly into the river. Another example is the city of Chita, where the problem of spontaneous dumps is acute.
- I think that one of the main examples of inventions with a negative environmental impact are factories and cars running on gasoline or diesel fuel. They emit many harmful substances into the Earth's atmosphere.
- I believe that the use of solar energy can help to reduce the carbon footprint. It's much more environmentally friendly, and often – cheaper!
